

National Weather Service Tucson, AZ WEATHER BRIEFING

Issued: Tuesday, October 20, 2015

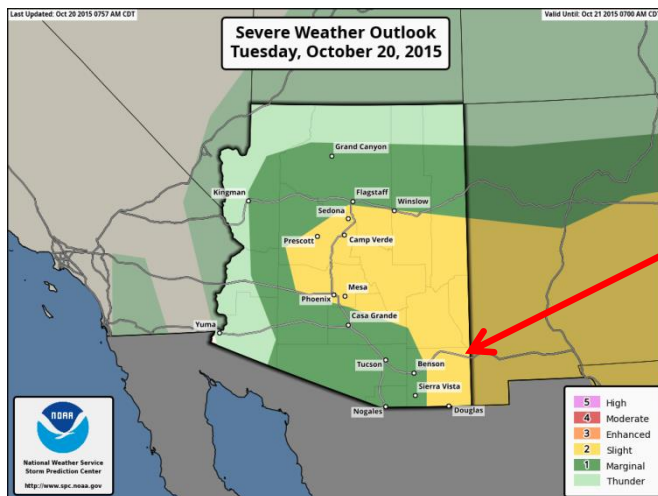

8:40 AM MST

Overview: Showers and thunderstorms are expected to develop across SE Arizona after Noon today, with activity lingering into the overnight hours. Best chance for activity over Cochise, Graham, and Greenlee Counties. Eastern areas have been placed in a "Slight Risk" for severe thunderstorms by the NWS's Storm Prediction Center.

Hazards/Impacts:

Significant weather hazards will impact Cochise, Graham, and Greenlee Counties. Lesser impacts anticipated elsewhere.

- Heavy rainfall causing localized flooding
- Strong winds in excess of 40 mph
- Hail

Most likely areas for significant impacts

Confidence:

High for showers and thunderstorms this afternoon through early Wednesday.

High for thunderstorms producing heavy rainfall, strong winds and hail for eastern areas.

Building a Weather-Ready Nation

weather.gov/tucson